Terms and Conditions

Incognito insurance is a learning resource on web application security to only be used for the following reasons

1. Learning how websites work
2. Learning how php and sql servers work
3. To be used by tutors to teach students how a business oriented system would work
4. For users to attempt to find vulnerabilities within the application after they have contacted an authorised tutor

What the site owner is not at all responsible for and users hold full accountability

1. Using this site in any way which violates any UK or EU law
2. Using this site in any way which violates international copyright laws
3. Using this site in any way in attempt to imitate Uk insurance and drive with it
4. Using this site to attempt to sell anyone insurance and coerce anyone into believe they are driving with legit insurance

By logging in and using any resources this website you agree to these that you are 100% responsible for your action and agree that the site admin has not sold you anything you that you are unaware of and they have informed you they are not responsible for any of your actions and you are only permitted to use this site in ways which follow the law.